

BOLD HOLD-UP.

For the Second Time Within a Few Months

The Wells-Fargo Express Co. Is Robbed of a Large Amount.

The robbery occurred at the Santa Fe Depot, Colorado Springs, Tuesday night, with the express company's loss estimated at $100,000.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Nov. 12.—A most daring and successful hold-up took place at the Santa Fe depot here Monday night, and for a second time within a few months the Wells-Fargo Express Co. is minus a small-sized fortune owing to robberies in this vicinity.

The Chicago limited of the Santa Fe, due here at 9:45, pulled in and out on time, and after its departure the night agent busied himself as is customary for a time on the platform arranging matters for a later train. When he entered the express office, which is located in one end of the depot, he was suddenly confronted by six shooters in the hands of two men, who ordered him to throw up his hands and then commanded him to open the safe. Both requests were complied with. The robbers then rifled the safe, securing some $100,000, and disappeared. Beyond the fact that both the men were small, no clue to their identity is known at present.

AN EASY PREY.

This Country Unprepared for War—Europe Could Block Our Harbors in Sixty Days. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Commander in Chief of the Army Gen. Miles says in his annual report that the service is efficient and attentive to duty. The peaceable character of the United States is attributed largely to the presence of the troops at suitable points. Under the head of coast defense, Gen. Miles says the condition of these defenses is such as to require direct and immediate action for improvement. The present condition of our coast is known by every first-class power, and our people should not be led to false security. Gen. Miles says that some of the forts have been made toward defending San Francisco, and a few modern guns and rifles have been placed. San Diego and Puget Sound are entirely at the mercy of any foreign fleet.

Gen. Miles says that it is possible for any naval power to blockade every important port within ninety days, while it would take many years to make a successful resistance, and the country might be reduced to a state of anarchy. While the railroads might transport a million brave men to the coast, they would be useless without the modern engines of war, with all our intelligence, pride, inventive genius and enterprise, we are not prepared to meet any appliances as China or Japan.

FOREIGN POLICY.

The President Will Make a Formal Recommendation

To the Congress for the Recognition of the Independence of Cuba.

The Venezuelan Boundary Dispute Likely to Receive Attention in the Message—Also Alaska Boundary Dispute and the Imprisonment of Walker.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A special to the Evening Press from Washington says: The statement was made Monday on authority which is regarded in diplomatic circles as unquestionably reliable, that Secretary Olney has succeeded in persuading the president to make a formal recommendation to congress for the recognition of Cuban independence.

It has until this time been doubtful whether Mr. Cleveland could be induced to take such a pronounced step. He has from the outset desired to treat Spain with the utmost fairness and maintain a strict neutrality, preferring to take the extreme of indifference rather than that of over-evident sympathy. But present insurgent triumphs have aided arguments in favor of recognition.

The climax was reached Monday when news was received that arrangements had been perfected for the exchange between the contending armies of prisoners of war. This fact in itself is conclusive evidence that the so-called rebels are hereafter to be treated not as guerrillas, but insurgents.

Any action of the United States on this line would now not only have the sanction of many precedents, but the practical example of Spain herself and no protest could be against the declaration of a self-instituted policy.

The matter of time in the receipt of a reply from Great Britain, giving a definite answer to Secretary Olney's interpretation of the Monroe doctrine and outlining the course to be pursued by that government in regard to that Venezuelan boundary dispute, will likely decide as to whether the president's recommendation concerning Cuban recognition will be incorporated in his regular annual message to congress on the date of its assembling three weeks from Monday or made the subject of a special communication in the subsequent immediate future.

If a response is in the meantime received from Great Britain, it is understood that the subject of foreign relations will be taken up in detail in the regular message and the question of the Monroe doctrine, its application to the Venezuelan controversy, Cuban independence, the Alaskan boundary, the Armenian troubles, the matter of ex-Consul Walker's imprisonment, and other subjects of international correspondence will be discussed at unusual length.

But the reply does not arrive within less than a fortnight the consideration of these topics will be generalized and the matter of Cuban recognition will be incorporated in a special message, which will be written after a definite policy has been fully outlined on the subject in the dispatches and correspondence now being exchanged between this country and Great Britain.

In any event the point is apparently settled that there can at the outside be but a few days' variation in the fixing of a time when the president will communicate to congress his belief that the revolution in Cuba has attained sufficient advancement to justify the recognition of the de facto government established by the insurgents. It is believed to be a certainty that action of this character will be taken within the period of deferment of the presidential election, and as it will satisfy the provisional government they have organized and render the question of their ultimate success by force of arms extremely doubtful. Such reverses are not predicted by general affairs, although all things are declared to be favorable in his opinion to the fortunes of war. The friends of Cuba here are very enthusiastic in consequence of the information contained in the dispatches and believe that the fruition of their hopes and prayers is at hand.

In view of these facts the suggestion is being made by many politicians that the president may surprise the people by going a step farther than is expected by the most imaginative and independently advocating the annexation of Cuba, giving as his reasons the vast property interests of American citizens in the island.

POISONING IN INDIA

A Popular Method of Disposing of Obnoxious Persons.

Although the English government keeps strict surveillance over its subjects in India, it does not seem able to stop the wholesale poisonings going on among the natives there every year. Says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. It seems innate in the native Hindu to poison if he desires to get rid of some one who is in his way. The poison, which the natives use produces about the same symptoms as the poison of a snake. The victim dies suddenly and is cremated within an hour or two after death, so there is no opportunity of investigating the cause. The poisoner, to further deceive, usually makes a cut in the leg or arm with a knife, so that the fangs of the snake would make, so that it is difficult to distinguish a victim of the snake from the victim of the poisoner. There are thousands of deaths put on the government registers every year that are attributed to the bites of snakes. I venture to say that but a small percentage of these are from that cause. In traveling through India it is rarely that a snake will attack you, for as soon as it hears anyone approaching it usually glides away. Europeans are seldom bitten, on account of the boots and leggings they wear, and the natives, who go barefooted, occasionally step upon a reptile which strikes them and death results in a few hours. The English government officers, who go to head for every poisonous snake killed. I know of some places where natives went into the business of breeding cobras for the purpose of selling this bounty made a good business out of it. In Lower Bengal, where snakes are held to be sacred, you find them in profusion, for it is considered sacrilege to kill them. I remember a house in which I resided in that district in which it was usual to kill one or two cobras a day. Snakes had got between the walls of sundried brick, and once in awhile would steal out of a hole like a rat.

SERVANTS IN INDIA.

They Are Vastly Different From Those In This Country.

Domestic life in India is without the annoyance of the servants of this country. They seem to know it by instinct. They do not have the same idea of a servant as we have here. They are about twelve servants—a cook, a waiter, a sort of valet de chambre and, if you have two horses, two grooms; one man to run before you, and one to out riding and take charge of your horse, another man whose business it is to collect for your horse's feed the grass which grows in a vine-like manner upon the roads. Then in summer you require three or four men who work the large fans or "punkas" over you night and day while you are lying and while you are sleeping; then last, but not least, a watchman. This last institution is a peculiar one. If you did not have him he would be liable to find something stolen every night. Strangest of all, the only man who is a successful watchman must be a thief—the caste of a thief. He has no pretensions of being anything else, but as long as you have him in your employ nothing will ever be stolen. While the native Hindus are very dishonest, the only way in which to keep your valuables safe is to give them into their hands for keeping. If one looks to his pocket and finds his money gone, he will be sure that some time or other one of the servants would steal it; but the money is given to a servant he would guard it with his life.

KOREA AND THE KOREANS.

A Returned American Missionary Tells About Interesting People.

Rev. Graham Lee is a Presbyterian missionary of Rock Island, Ill., who has been working in the Korean field at Seoul for the last year, according to the San Francisco Call. He says: "The Koreans are an amiable people, and a man can travel all over their country without being molested or treated. Sometimes, of course, one will meet a man who is rather untrusting, but generally they are disposed to treat us kindly. Like all other people, they are immoral, and Seoul is no exception among the cities of the east. It is a filthy city, too."

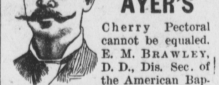

"The people are not at all progressive. There were some progressive Koreans who tried to have a postal system and mint to coin money a few years ago, but the innovations lasted only twenty-four hours; the people rose in revolt. Why did they oppose the post office and mint? Well, you know the orientals are never taught to think. In their schools all the pupils do is to go over mechanically a list of characters before them until they commit them to memory. That's why it is so hard to teach them mathematics. So that it might be said that there was no particular reason for the opposition to the proposed reform other than their objection to progression generally. The Chinese language is taught in all their schools."

Slavery in Siam.

Slavery has been abolished in name in Siam, but it can never be abolished in fact, for the slaves have no means of supporting themselves outside their masters' houses. Every member of the Siamese upper classes can enter his servants or throw them into prison without any kind of trial or permission being necessary. One must go to call upon one of the ablest and most enlightened of the ministers, a man who has been to Europe, and who once actually got into serious trouble for trying to inaugurate a sort of woman's rights movement in Siam, says a writer in the Contemporary Review. I made my way by mistake into a part of his grounds where visitors were not expected, and I found a slave fastened down to the ground in an horrible kind of pillory, while he could not move hand or foot, while another slave tortured him with severe strokes of a bamboo rod at the word of a member of the family in order to force him to confess to some misdeed.
